[7-8] 다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하십시오.

Fair trade sounds brilliant, and it is now a very big business. (①) In the UK alone, annual sales of fair-trade products topped half a billion pounds (one billion dollars) in 2008. (②) One obvious problem is that fairly traded goods can cost significantly more. (③) Though the difference between a fair-trade candy bar and an ordinary one is often marginal, fair-trade clothes or household items can be significantly more expensive than goods traded in the usual way. (④) Many people, especially those struggling to get by on low incomes, cannot afford to pay the difference. (⑤) If fair trade really is claiming to help poorer people and make the world fairer, should it not be aiming to help poorer consumers as well as poorer producers?
