

For Sparky, school was almost impossible. He failed every subject in the eighth grade. He didn't do much better in sports. Throughout his youth Sparky was awkward socially. Sparky never once asked a girl to go out in high school. He was too afraid of being turned down. Sparky was a loser.

- (A) So Sparky decided to write his own story in the comic strip “Peanuts,” which became famous around the world. Charlie Brown, the little cartoon character and who never succeeded, is Charles Schultz himself.
- (B) However, one thing was important to Sparky — drawing. He was proud of his artwork. Of course, no one else appreciated it. Despite this rejection, Sparky decided to become a professional artist.
- (C) After completing high school, he wrote a letter to Walt Disney Studios and was given a chance to send some samples of his artwork. Finally, the reply came from Disney Studios. He had been rejected once again. Another loss for the loser.
